The first edit of WILLIAM YEOWARD ...collected has been so well received in markets across the globe.

Our collaboration with Jonathan Charles, world class makers and designers of fine furniture has enabled us to realise the dream of a line of furniture with relevance to the past that is both beautiful and useful today.

With attention to every detail, these shapes and finishes have a modernity that puts this line in a class of its own.

WILLIAM YEOWARD CRYSTAL continues to shine as the ‘world’s most glamorous crystal’.

The collaboration with Timothy Jenkins whose eye for the exceptional in craftsmanship and William Yeoward’s observations as to what people will be using in beautiful interiors continues to perfect a heady mix of good design and sublime quality.

Illustrated within this, our second newspaper we are also proudly showcasing our three new WILLIAM YEOWARD FABRIC collections Marlena ,Alberesque and Library.

William has worked tirelessly over the past year building on the success of previous collections to both enhance and vary his offer.

Apart from two luxurious print and weave books William has developed Library, a book of simple textured plains that can be the base of any decorative scheme.

“The precision and expertise required to execute the carving on these pieces is typical of the quality that is to be found in the WILLIAM YEOWARD . . .collected line.

The detail in the ram’s mask and the elegance of the silhouette illustrates the care and attention given to each and every piece; after all it’s all in the detail...”

Toby's sofa is the most delightful piece. It's a bench and a sofa and it has elegance, grace and is transitional in its design. A good 'canape' that will also work at the end of a large bed or as a dining banquette.

Nicola Armchair

“I rather fancy some mid century furniture was somehow the thought process behind this great new armchair!”

Yeoward is yet again remodelling his London apartment and as he puts it... “it’s only like living in a permanent laboratory, a space in flux which to me is both exciting and stimulating!”

The inspiration for these pieces came from some references from the Adelphi, Liverpool.

Pierrette, a charming print on linen in the Marlena collection 2015 is transitional in its design and appeal.

The single and double Lucca benches are interpretations of an arts and crafts bench in William's collection.
